Religion and Foreign Policy Initiative

Connecting the Religious Community to CFR's Resources on International Issues

CFR Mission

The Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) is an independent, nonpartisan membership organization, think tank, and publisher dedicated to being a resource for its members, government officials, business executives, journalists, educators and students, civic and religious leaders, and other interested citizens in order to help them better understand the world and the foreign policy choices facing the United States and other countries.

Religion and Foreign Policy Initiative

The CFR Religion and Foreign Policy Initiative connects religious and congregational leaders, scholars, and thinkers with CFR's resources on U.S. foreign policy and provides a forum for this community to discuss a broad range of pressing international issues.

Resources

Religion and Foreign Policy on CFR.org

CFR's award-winning website, CFR.org, features daily analysis of current events by CFR fellows and a news editorial team. Content includes interviews with experts, in-depth Backgrounders, and Emmy Award-winning interactive Crisis Guides, as well as downloadable video, audio, and transcripts of CFR meetings and podcasts on timely global topics.

CFR's Religion and Foreign Policy portal, www.cfr.org/religion, serves as a gateway to CFR's best materials on international issues for religious leaders. Designed with this community in mind, material on the page is timely, relevant, and easy to browse by topic and region. Viewers can also send and share content, as well as sign up to receive alerts through RSS feeds and newsletters.

For more information, visit www.cfr.org/religion.

The screenshot shows the website for the Religion Initiative Home, part of the Council on Foreign Relations. The page is titled "Religion and Foreign Policy" and features a main article about Pope Benedict XVI in the Mideast. The article includes a photo of the Pope and a brief summary. Below the main article, there are several sections: "Commentary and Resources on Religion and Foreign Policy" with sub-sections for "U.S. Immigration Policy", "Economic and Political Development in the Middle East", "The Future of Foreign Assistance Amid Global Economic and Financial Crisis", "Islam: Governing Under Sharia", "Religion and Politics in Iran", "Religion in China", and "U.S.-Vatican Relations". There is also a "Crisis Guide: Middle East" section. The page includes a navigation menu, a search bar, and a footer with contact information and RSS feeds.

Publications

CFR Books, Task Force reports, and other special publications offer analysis on major topical and regional issues. CFR can provide materials free of charge at the request of religious leaders and scholars.

Foreign Affairs

America's most influential publication on international affairs, published by CFR, offers accessible in-depth analysis of current issues. A discounted subscription is available to religious and congregational leaders and scholars.

To subscribe at the discounted rate, visit www.foreignaffairs.com/outreachcfr.

Monthly eNewsletter

The CFR Religion and Foreign Policy Bulletin highlights resources of particular interest to the religious community, including upcoming sessions of the CFR Religion and Foreign Policy Conference Call series, new publications, and CFR analysis.

To subscribe, visit www.cfr.org/about/newsletters.

Expertise

Scholars

CFR is home to more than fifty scholars. Taken together, their expertise covers a wide range of international issues.

Briefings

CFR can arrange for a fellow to brief an individual or group of religious leaders—in person or via teleconference—prior to delegations, mission trips abroad, or other events.

Conference Appearances

CFR fellows or senior staff members are available to speak at major religious conferences. CFR experts have participated in events for organizations such as the American Academy of Religion, the Jewish Council for Public Affairs, and the Muslim Public Affairs Council.

For more information on expert briefings or inviting a CFR scholar to address your organization, email outreach@cfr.org.

Fellowships

Religious leaders and scholars are encouraged to apply for a CFR International Affairs Fellowship, which offers a year of research and writing or service in a policy-oriented environment.

For more information, visit www.cfr.org/about/fellowships.

“CFR’s Religion and Foreign Policy Initiative makes an extraordinary contribution to the national conversation on the role of religion in today’s world. The conference call series and meetings provide a unique non-partisan forum for leaders in the religious community to discuss the full range of international issues at the top of the agenda in a cross-denominational environment, and the website offers a wealth of timely resources that are “must-reads” for anyone who wants to keep abreast of global developments.”

—J. Bryan Hehir, Montgomery Professor of the Practice in Religion and Public Life, Harvard Kennedy School

Convening Power

Conference Call Series

Led by a CFR scholar and/or religious community leader, the monthly CFR Religion and Foreign Policy Conference Call series gives religious and congregational leaders and scholars the opportunity to participate in nonpartisan, cross-denominational conversations on global issues.

Recent speakers and topics include

- CFR President Richard N. Haass on the just and unjust war debate
- Michael Cromartie, vice president, Ethics and Public Policy Center, and Felice D. Gaer, director, Blaustein Institute for Human Rights, American Jewish Committee, on the International Religious Freedom Act
- CFR Senior Fellows Daniel Markey and Timothy Samuel Shah on the interplay of politics and religion in India and Pakistan
- CFR Senior Fellow Edward Alden and Richard D. Land, president, Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission, Southern Baptist Convention, on U.S. immigration policy.

Audio recordings of calls are posted afterward at www.cfr.org/religion.

Summer Workshop

The annual CFR Religion and Foreign Policy Summer Workshop brings religious leaders from across the country to CFR headquarters in New York to discuss pressing international issues. Past workshops have examined topics such as Darfur, conflict in the Middle East, democracy and the promotion of religious freedom, and the global financial crisis and its implications for development.

Access to Premier Meetings and Events

CFR convenes hundreds of meetings and events each year in New York, Washington, DC, and around the country, hosting world leaders and policymakers. Members of the religious community are invited to attend select CFR meetings, as well as participate remotely via teleconference and/or webcast. Recent speakers include

- Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice on diplomacy in the Western hemisphere
- Middle East Quartet Representative and former prime minister of the United Kingdom Tony Blair on the Israeli-Palestinian peace process

- President of Afghanistan Hamid Karzai on the challenges facing his country
- UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-Moon on the future of the United Nations
- former secretary of state Madeleine K. Albright on her book, The Mighty and the Almighty: Reflections on America, God, and World Affairs
- Prime Minister of Zimbabwe Morgan Tsvangirai on political and economic development in Zimbabwe
