Marisa L. Porges

Marisa L. Porges is an international affairs fellow in residence at the Council on Foreign Relations. She is researching the debate surrounding long-term detention policy and looking at efforts to deradicalize detainees in custody. Ms. Porges was most recently a policy advisor in the Office of Terrorist Financing and Financial Crimes at the U.S. Department of the Treasury, where she developed strategies to combat money laundering, terrorist financing, and criminal and illicit activities at home and abroad. In that capacity, she also worked on counterterrorism initiatives with the Department of Defense and served on the recent U.S. Central Command assessment team.

Prior to joining Treasury, Ms. Porges worked for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, as an advisor in the Office of Detainee Affairs. Her responsibilities included negotiating with foreign governments on detention issues and coordinating U.S. government efforts to repatriate detainees from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and Afghanistan. She is also a commissioned naval officer and winged naval flight officer, having served on active duty flying the Navy's EA-6B Prowler and deploying aboard the USS Lincoln during Operation Unified Assistance.

Ms. Porges received her BA, with honors, in geophysics from Harvard University and an MSc, with distinction, in government from the London School of Economics and Political Science.
