Adam Segal

Adam Segal is the Maurice R. Greenberg senior fellow for China studies at the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR). An expert on Chinese domestic politics, technology development, foreign policy, and security issues, Dr. Segal currently leads a study group on Asian innovation and technological entrepreneurship. His forthcoming book, to be published by W.W. Norton, looks at the technological rise of Asia. Previously, he was the project director for a CFR-sponsored independent task force on Chinese military modernization.

Before coming to CFR, Dr. Segal was an arms control analyst for the China Project at the Union of Concerned Scientists. There, he wrote about missile defense, nuclear weapons, and Asian security issues. He has been a visiting scholar at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Center for International Studies, the Shanghai Academy of Social Sciences, and Qinghua University in Beijing. He has taught at Vassar College and Columbia University. Dr. Segal is the author of Digital Dragon: High-Technology Enterprises in China (Cornell University Press, 2003), as well as several articles and book chapters on Chinese technology policy. His work has recently appeared in the International Herald Tribune, Financial Times, Washington Quarterly, Los Angeles Times, and Foreign Affairs.

Dr. Segal has a PhD and a BA in government from Cornell University, and an MA in international relations from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University. He reads and speaks Chinese.
