

Nadwa Al-Dawsari

Nadwa Al-Dawsari is a researcher and conflict analyst with over twenty years of field experience in Yemen. Nadwa is currently a nonresident scholar with the Middle East Institute and a fellow at the Center on Armed Groups. Previously, she was a Nonresident Senior Fellow at the Project on Middle East Democracy (POMD); Yemen Country Director for the Center for Civilians in Conflict; and Founding Director for Partners Yemen. In her early career, she worked with the National Democratic Institute.

Nadwa Al-Dawsari's research focuses on Yemen and the Gulf, exploring conflict and security dynamics. Her research dives deep into the local perspective of the conflict in Yemen and its connections to the broader regional power dynamics in the Middle East. She has a master's degree in Development Studies from the University of Leeds.

Her published work can be found on her website www.yementribalvoices.org